When I was a boy I met this kid from down the street
Laying on the ground sobbing, a scrape upon his cheek
In his discontent I found someone I shouldn't be
I know that I have strength
If you weaken in your knees, you'll never know how far you'll go
The sadness falls upon you like a blanket in the snow Comfort is the hardest thing to find when you are lost inside the time
Oh, the time that you're livin' in
If you climb high enough to fall,
I hope you land hard enough to scar.
You'll know that in this game of it all
That we're all small
I learned from my father that we all were born to die
You make sure that you're honest boy don't ever tell a lie
You wear your heart out on your sleeve until the day you die
I know that I have strength
If you climb high enough to fall,
I hope you land hard enough to scar.
You'll know that in this game of it all
That we're all so small
You'll have to find a way, to make it so much better
You'll have to lead the way, to make it so much better
You'll have to lead the way, to make it so much better
You'll have to find a way
If you climb high enough to fall,
I hope you land hard enough to scar.
You'll know that in this game of it all
That we're all small
You'll know that in this game of it all
That we're all small
