I think about the times I spent following your footsteps just to get another glimpse of you I still remember how you taste sitting on the staircase waiting for lunch break to end If you feel like dying and you're feeling so alone just think about the things you need the most If you feel like crying and you're praying for some hope just think about the things you need the most I'm staring at the stars again pretending that you'll hear me sing cause every song I sing I sing for you I'm walking down the narrow road just getting older as I go the hardest part of this is to forget but nobody's listening
