Before I let you down again
I just want to see you, in your eyes
I wouldn't have taken everything out on you
I only thought you could understand.

They say every man goes blind in his heart.
And they say everybody steals somebody's heart away
And I've got nothing more to say about it
Nothing more than you and me.

Save me a flower of your December
Save me a dream of your candy wine
I've got just one thing I can't give you
Just one more thing of mine.

They say every man goes black in his heart
And they say everybody steals somebody's heart away
And I've been wondering why you let me down
And I've been taking it all for granted.
