(Don Reid - Harold Reid)

It's been too long ago, there's so much we don't know
It's been years since I've been this close to you Standing here on the street like strangers when we meet
Oh, God knows it's been too long ago.

I won't try to lie to you cause time just won't let us
Play the games we once had the time to play
We're both a little older but Lord you don't look it
When you smile I feel eighteen again today.

But it's been too long ago, there's so much we don't know
It's been years since I've been this close to you Standing here on the street like strangers when we
meet
Oh, God knows it's been too long ago.

There are so many things I'd love to ask you
Where you live whatcha doin' your last name
And do you remember the things I remember
'Cause a memory minus one is a shame.

And it's been too long ago, there's so much we don't know
It's been years since I've been this close to you Standing here on the street like strangers when we
meet
Oh, God knows it's been too long ago.

Oh, God knows it's been too long ago...
