"Little Inconvenient"

I remember ridin' bikes with you in the park
Quiet conversations alone in the dark
Now that you're gone and you're never coming home
It sure gets lonely but I'd rather be alone Without you it's juts a little inconvenient after all these years
A little inconvenient to smile through all these tears
A little hard to handle when the kids ask where you are But I'll get along it's just a little inconvenient

What I'd give to love you once again
Look across the breakfast table see you smiling there But things have really changed since you've left this place
I can't really say that time has helped or erased your memory
It's juts a little inconvenient...
