Of all the strangers I've come to know
You by far are the most beautiful
A light to stand in, a copper shine
I'm happy to be here
Of all the words we spill in the air
I've threaded lines but not so you'd hear
I think about you
Oh no, not again

What your heart don't you know won't hurt it
It won't hurt
Oblivious sometimes so perfect
It won't hurt
If your heart don't know

Of every second and then on the hour
I catch myself working you out
Just to know you, oh no not enough
Too much for an addict
Driftwood on a hopeless sea
Sail by, sail by, honey

Oblivious sometimes is worth it
If your heart don't know
