The warning came as it often did
I felt no shame, played the game, you count, I hid
When winter whispers in crisp morning air Chilled my spine, wouldn't change my mind, I did not care
How could I begin, oh, what I could not end?
How could I be honest yet still pretend?

Never in a million years could I forget you
Never in a million years would I try
Never in a million lives could we be parted
Love like life never dies

You spoke the truth, sometimes cutting like a knife Could run no-where, you stripped me bare and I could not fight
Couldn't cover my ears or close my eyes
You're in my heart, you help still my mind

Never in a million years could I forget you
Never in a million years would I try
Never in a million lives could we be parted
Love like life never dies

You are my rock, you are my rock in shifting sand
Whenever I'm sinking you're there to take my hand
You are my eyes in the blackest dark moon nights
You are my strength, my guide and light
You are my anchor to Mother Earth below
When seas of change tried to swallow me whole

Never in a million years could I forget you
Never in a million years would I try
Never in a million lives could we be parted
Love like life never dies
