I love to waltz with a man in a dark linen suit
All alone at a party with someone I knew
From a time gone by turned into stone

You could be Garbo or even Marlena
You could be Marilyn or you could forget

I play the part but then all of us do
And I do it so well as I do it to you
In this town full of strangers
In this town full of fools

Venus doesn't glitter
When she stands next to you
When you're waltzing through stardom
You miss what you lose

Lose yourself in a silvery dress
For you think you must do
What you feel you do best
And you mustn't give it up
Oh, you're still but a guest

You could be Garbo or even Marlena
Or you could forget

Forget, forget, forget
(You could be Garbo)
You could forget, you could forget
