Such a little girl, such a hard life
She could look a challenge straight between the eyes
Disappointment would become her middle name
Up against the wall, Jane

So her nights became nightmares
As she fought for their souls
And the days became worse
For the ones she loved

Children of the world
The forgotten chimpanzee
In the eyes of the world
You have done so much for me

There are angels here, angels
There are angels here on earth
Angels sent from God
Come away from the wall, stay with us
You can, Jane

So she watched as they put them all into cages
Well, they might as well have caged her very own baby
In fact they might as well have put us both into prison
Through a window all our sorrows would become our only visions
Nothing more

There are angels here, angels
There are angels here on earth
Angels sent from God
You will never feel that you have ever done enough
But you have, Jane

Such a little girl, such a hard life
She could look a challenge straight between the eyes
Disappointment would become her middle name
Up against the wall, Jane

Nothing more than the shadow of a man
Come away from the wall, Jane
Well, they might as well put us both into prison

Come away if you can, Jane

Through a window all our sorrows
Will become our only visions
Come away, Jane
Come away, come away if you can

In the eyes of the world
You have done so much

Come away Jane
Come away Jane, if you can Jane
