it occurs to me that things often never change decisions made for you. did you ever even have a say? what do you want? it doesn't matter what are your desires? no one cares resign to this end up with nothing but despair trying hard to stand by your decisions (i'll decide for myself) fighting back for true choice will start to take its toll but don't trust others to have your sense and vision (they see things their way) they will take over if you relinquish your control it occurs to me that its always worked this way under a control.
well who decides your fate? what do you want? it doesn't matter what are your desires? no one cares resign to this end up with nothing but despair
is it pure fact or fiction you decide. its my decision. is it pure fact or fiction who decides? its your decision!
