Rise from the abyss, infernal source of power
Beard the grand old wise Portal of faith you maintain Living in longing of a mighty one Who descended here with a crown of victory
Of shade and other shades who have dwelled Living souls stand clear of those
For their souls have longed for death
About their eyes are red wheels aflame
And a soul as cold as ice
In strange tongue their evil words Forlorn to the naked soul
Beckoning them with eyes ablaze Wicked souls give up your thoughts of heaven, and pure rebirth
Join us in an end into eternal dark into eternal fire and ice
Father Satan sin my soul to hell, take me through the unholy gates to ride the wings of darkness
Black winds of Satan rise

Hail Satan...
Whirlwinds burst up from tear-soaked ground Erupting the wake of my senses and though I fell As though seized by sleep
If thou could only think for the god you save may be yourself
Breaking the deep sleep which filled my head as though by force
With rested eyes I stood peering out to gaze where I was sensing the eternal emptiness Descending into sightless zones No laments can be heard except for the sighs that trembled the timeless air of shadowy sadness Nothing before me eternal, yet eternal I remain Break all the jewels you can Deface my crowded throne See beyond my gaze and throw me to the depths for I have through fire and ice lost of innocence!
Terror!
