

Decemberists

"Billy Liar"

Visit "Billy Liar" on MotoLyrics.com

Billy Liar's got his hands in his pockets
Staring over at the neighbors' knickers down
He's got his knickers down

So the summer is eternity for you?
Sleeping in until your father's shaking you down
He's shaking you down

And the mail room shift gets a real short shrift
As you dole out the packages
No one seems to want you around
All skulking around

Let your legs lure on the lino
'Til your sinews spoil
Will you stay here for a while, dear
'Til the radio plays something familiar?
Plays something familiar

All a drifting, he's a no good boyo
Sent a fishing for a whalebone corset frame
His only catch all day

So he sits and lets the current take him
A gentle breeze will leave his pants in disarray
And at his ankles laid

As he drifts to sleep with a moan and a weep
He is decked by a Japanese
Geisha with a garland of pearls
How she twists and twirls

Let your legs lure on the lino
'Til your sinews spoil
Will you stay here for a while, dear
'Til the radio plays something familiar?
Plays something familiar
Plays something familiar
Plays something familiar

Visit Decemberists page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.
