

Sundowner

"All Prologue"

Visit "All Prologue" on MotoLyrics.com

There are no second acts they say
In our America today
And every day I watch the tides
The dock light glowing through the night

The land is dark and quiet
I don't turn the pages
Somewhere I lost that fire
The story never changes

What does our closest future hold?
Day at a time I suppose
And all these books just fill the walls
No friends to clutter up these halls

The house is dead and lonely
I don't turn the pages
You were the one and only
The story never changes

There are no second acts they say
In our America today
What does our closest future hold?
Day at a time I suppose

Visit Sundowner page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.