

Sylvan "Posthumous Silence"

Visit "Posthumous Silence" on MotoLyrics.com

In the quietness of his silent walls
Frail and sunken drops her pages down
While the sorrow like a moral guilt falls due
He released her, but he'll mourn for sure
In the deepness of this apathetic dream
How to notice, also his world turned
As the places that once told her life do wane
Darkened spaces, only dust remains...

Lost and forgotten at the dawn of the night
Naked of people and naked of light
We failed to notice to show her we tried
To keep her from falling, to save this sole child...

Visit Sylvan page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.