I shot a girl just bid to her adieu
A wretched fool who bore a grin just like you
I watched her mirth fade away
And cherished all her pain and smiled

I walked to town, enigma stirring in my boots
And tipped my hat to every girl within my view
And found their hearts would melt
With fevered lies come rain or come shine

The years would come, and they would pass before I knew
Until the day I had stumbled into you
A heavenly lovely lady now to fill my eyes
Come rain or come shine

Ooh...

And every time your heavenly light dries the rain, I cry
And every time clouds drown the night, I pray for you to shine
