No matter how I try
I can never love more than she can deny
The haunting memory's still plaguing on her mind
The more I call her to me, the more she trembles deep inside

But she can never hide from what haunts her dreams
What fills her sheets with a wintry gale tonight
The raven wind that chills her heart
The one that tends my fire inside

The hunger of your eyes
Forever longing for the warmth those restless nights
But you've scorned what you've adored all this time
Now just an ember fills your eyes and chills run down your spine

But you can never hide
Let me haunt your dreams
Let me fill your sheets with a wintry gale tonight
The raven wind that burns your heart
The one that draws you out with the tide
