Looking down the road I see
So many tattered lives
Proud dreams of hope stand
Shining for better times
Long, long ago they vowed
They would return
From lands across the plains to meet again

For so long to be home once again
How many times can they be misled

No broken hearts this time- they will unite
No broken hearts this time-they'll be here to fight

One nations glory to rise up and defend
To bring their souls together
And hold tight till the end

For so long to be home once again
How many times can they be misled

No broken hearts this time- they will unite
No broken hearts this time-they'll be here to fight
