I'm better now
I'm bigger than the man you made me
There you go, I think I'm happy
I've seen the light, cut the ties for now I'm sober
There's still so much to do before I hit the ground

Ohh, life, you can take your first steps
Walk into a brick wall, try your best to stand tall
Before you learn to crawl
Love is never easy unless it's in a movie
But I'm not Jamie Dean, I said I'm not Jamie Dean

And we all fall down out of the sky
Into the basement, looking for a way back up again
Yeah, we all walk up slowly up the stairs
Onto the pavement, looking for the place where we belong
The place where we belong

I smile again
I haven't smoked now for a whole day
I think I've given up
I love that song, the one that says
How I wish you were here
But I'm back on the ground
I can't wait another year

Ohh, life, you can take your first steps
Walk into a brick wall
Try your best to stand tall, before you learn to crawl
Love is never easy, only in some poetry
But I'm not Oscar Wilde, I said I'm not Oscar Wilde

And we all fall down out of the sky
Into the basement, looking for a way back up again
Yeah, we all walk up slowly up the stairs onto
The pavement, looking for the place where we belong
The place where we belong

Ohh, ohh, ohh, yeah

And we all fall down out of the sky

Into the basement, looking for a way back up again
Yeah, we all walk up slowly up the stairs onto
The pavement, looking for the place where we belong
The place where we belong

Looking for a way, looking for a way back up again
And we all walk slowly up the stairs onto
The pavement, looking for the place
The place where we belong
