"The Day After"

I should get out of it
But I cannot refrain
From wondering where
It comes from
And why it has begun
Confusion in my mind
Has slithered through my eyes
It has reached my soul and now
It's consuming me inside
The veil has been torn

Swallow the words I vomit
May they crawl unto your senses
Forward, the path is waiting
Will you join me? Time has come to leave...

Climbing the walls of misery
I'll find a place where answers rest. Are you calling me?
Tomorrow 's dark and my skin is scarred
But I will face it more than enough. The day after arrived

I wonder if what you do Tallies with what you are
No one seems to realize
We don't have to hide
I won't forsake you

Drink these words that are falling
From my mouth, may they touch your heart
The way is waiting for us
Will you join me? Time has come to change...

Climbing the walls of misery
I'll find a place where answers rest. Tell me if you need me!
Tomorrow 's dark and my skin is scarred
But I will face it more than enough. The day after

Come on

Let's fight the dawn
No remorse
The day after

Come on now!
Climbing the walls of misery
I'll find a place where answers rest, it's all that's left to me!
My scar is now wide open and tomorrow 's still darker
But I will face it more and more and I'll reach the day after
