Would you run, would you stray from this town.
In the bad, in the good, when you're better off around.
It's a long way home to the middle of June.
If you go you'll be all by yourself and go it all alone.
It's always the people you know.
It's always the people you know.
It's always the people you know.
It's always the people you know.
Will you go there, will you lie.
I've been meaning the longest time for you to be highest.
You'll go and bring me along.
And I bet sound in the land of the corn.
You can go here and I hear I'll be around.
Told you now wake me.
Wake me and I'll go home again for you and your mother.
Remember how you bit her with the malice in the cold
when the glory is alone.
I'll help you now.
Oh, don't forget us 'cause
It's always the people you know.
It's always the people you know.
It's always the people you know.
It's always the people you know.
