I wake up, I stretch out
I wonder what you're doing right now
Yeah, I slept in my make-up again
Tell myself I must be crazy
Thinking about him
I find myself something decent to wear
Take the towel out of my hair
About that time, you called me
And I'm reminded
Without you I'd be
A stranger in an all night diner
Waiting for a love to find her
Lonely like a harbor light that's never seen a boat
Like a line in an old love letter
No one ever wrote
I go to work, work all day
I'm a walking tape recorder of everything you say
Walk to the car, dig out my keys
Start thinking if
You were with anyone but me
I'd be a stranger in an all night diner
Waiting for a love to find her
Lonely like a harbor that's never seen a boat
Just a line in an old love letter
No one ever wrote
There you are
On the street
Just standing there
Waiting on me I
I show you my new shoes
You say you love them
Baby without you
I'd be a stranger in an all night diner

Waiting for a love to find her
Lonely like a harbor that's never seen a boat
Just a line in an old love letter
No one ever wrote
I wake up, I stretch out
I wonder what you're doing right now
