"The Last Word"

If I should be honest
I don't know what I see in you
You don't give me anything that I don't already have You have the prettiest face
That I've ever known
But inside there is only cold stone

And still it's hard to steal your eyes from peoples thoughts
And it's not fun to only be good enough when no one's around
And I'm stupid enough to go back each time
You want me too
And I hate you for always having the last word

And I hate you for not taking me seriously
And I hate you for been waiting for this long
And I hate everything you stand for
But not even then
I can't stand tall without you

The words you write to me
Give me a reason to proceed
The words you say to me
Prove me that you are in need of them
But unfortunately
Not by me

And I hate you for not taking me seriously
And I hate you for been waiting for this long
And I Hate everything you stand for
But not even then
I can't stand tall without you
