(Verse)

Midnight, feel heat rise from the cement sirens, they ring out like epithets red flag on the front page worn through headlines a propaganda war, baby dont go out tonight you fight like hell, to pretend or deny within yourself

Failure, not worth what you have to spend forever, a second-class citizen

Madison Avenue reality? Step back! trying to buy me but I wont submit to that I dream, drink, drag with no flag in my hand innocence is my dissent

(Chorus)

One drop, ripple widens downpour, aint subsiding rain down, keep on falling pouring down, or hear no more voices calling out

(Verse)

Martyr, poetically slit your wrists pariah, for those who try to resist if you aint been warned, do not assimilate no love, no time nor reciprocity nearing the day youll be shot at if you run cant wait to go underground when the time comes Censored, opinions are not obscene rise up, or bow down on your knees our brothers and sisters forced to separate new thought control through isolation you gotta face the facts or break down and conform whose side are you on, how long will you wait for?

(Chorus)

(Verse)

Anger, as sure as our blood is red heaven, you never can second guess another frontier torn apart but if a voice is a weapon, mine is a machine gun were not too late, no its not out of our hands innocence will be our dissent

(Chorus)

One drop, ripple widens downpour, ohh and it aint subsiding rain down, keep on falling tear it down, or hear no more voices calling
one drop, ripple widens
downpour, or in to silence
