If I could make myself any stronger
I'd tear down this wall for you
You would never hid inside your room
Cry for hours
And a whisper and a tear drop never leaves
The hole you smashed into your wall
That you smashed into your wall
And I'll keep pushing these lines over again
And I'm missing you
I never though I'd have to try to make you smile
Like the first time that you found a dozen roses waiting at your door
The mascara on your pillowcase
It's never looked this dark
And you always sing
Always sing those sad songs for me
And then you curse yourself every time I sing along
Ever day it's just the same
You always sing those same sad songs to me
And you curse yourself
Even though you've got my heart pressed between the pages of your sweet, sweet diary
Sweet, sweet diary
You always know just where to go
Know just how to trust
But your love doesn't trust your anger
Leave your heart just trust your soul
Your love doesn't trust your anger
And your heart doesn't trust your soul
Well I'll keep pushing these lines over again
Because I'm missing you
And I never thought I'd have to try to make you smile
Like the first time that you found a dozen roses waiting
at your door
The mascara on your pillowcase
Has never looked this dark
And you always sing
You always sing the same sad songs to me
And then you curse yourself every time I sing along
Every day it's just the same
You always sing those same sad songs to me
And then you curse yourself every time I sing along

Curse yourself every time
Hold your breath, hold it tight girl
We'll never live again
Hold your breath, hold it tight girl
We'll never live again
Hold your breath, hold it tight girl
We'll never live again
Hold your breath, and hold it tight girl
We'll never live again
Hold your breath, and hold it tight girl
We'll never live again
Hold your breath, and hold it tight girl
We'll never live again
