

Ten Falls Forth

"Murder Kills Japan"

Visit "Murder Kills Japan" on MotoLyrics.com

Tell me do you remember when you were gazing
through my window,
Did you ever see what you thought,
Or was my stature convicted, was I left missing?
Without any words at all,
And all the promises I made,
And all the people I made wait,
I'd wait for you to know.

This dirt that's been paced at your feet,
My past life, you've changed me.
And your hesitation doesn't surprise me,
It's your will to forgive that drives me.

Your whispering to everyone,
I'm coming home where I came from.
You don't know me from this.

So dig me out of this hole,
Wash away the dirt and show my roots.
At the pity of your conscience,
Please don't shun me, don't shun me.

I can't take this pity from you,
When I live for everything that you want,
I am this make me your legend,
And I walk alone.

Without any words at all,
And all the promises I made,
And all the people I made wait,
I'd wait for you to know.

So take my callous heart, protect your eyes,
From the poisons you've been viewing,
And all I know is your gone.
And you saved me from myself this time,
You saved me from myself,
You saved me from myself this time,
And you saved me from myself

