(Verse 1)

Here I am, just your ordinary common man
Feel as though I can't walk I can hardly stand
I'm just a man, nothing more or less
I'm not demanding a check, I'm commanding respect
Blue collar class kid trapped in a cage
Looking for a way to make more than minimum wage
I can't contain, I'm going insane
My lifes full of pain I think somethings gotta change
Possibly a change of mind or a change of heart
Try to make amends but I don't know where to start
Due in part, to the reasons I've been seeing I just wanna leave but I can't find my way in the darkness
I'm not alone when I say that I've got problems
Try to make it make sense now my heads throbbing
Keep it poppin, no point in stopping
On the brink of despair, so close to sobbing
But everything happens for a reason
People come and go, kinda like the seasons
It's all good, it's just hard to watch them leaving
Take it one day at a time, gotta keep breathing
I'm seeing, things in a different light
I gotta try, to make all the wrongs right
I have to fight, to defend what's mine
A little piece of me dies, everytime I cry

(Chorus)

Cry out, cry out your name
Like a child, lost and afraid
Like a father, you heard my cries and you came

(Verse 2)

(Here we go again) The first time in a long time I've felt this way
Normally pretty quiet with nothing much to say
So I forever endeavor to get better
At the end of the day I know goods not ok
So I pray for, opportunity to improve
You want a sample I'll gamble I don't got much to lose
I'm coming back, bigger stronger and better than ever
So clever, but don't be tempted to test my temper

Temporarily out of patience, and out of luck
Certain circumstances, making it out without a scuff
It's just enough, I let these thoughts compound
Short on cash, you know the stuff that makes the world go round
Never making a sound, but I cried and you came Pointing fingers at others when I'm the one to blame
So we all gotta change, leave behind our former lives
Forever faithful, everytime that I

(Chorus 2)

Cry out, cry out your name
Like a child, lost and afraid
Like a father, you heard my cries and you came
Everytime I cried out, cried out your name
Like a child, lost and afraid
Like a father, you heard my cries and you came
Everytime I cried out, I cried out your name
Like a child, lost and afraid
Like a father, you heard my cries and you came
