get out of the city if it hurts you're too blind, move it over try to get closer to the lifestyles of the gluttons seem so seamless and perfect i've been the secret that you've been keeping ears to the wall, eyes on the prize see that you've made a mistake and we all know what you've done here dear interceptor, i've been waiting show me something, hold the phone, we've found an answer
full moons and minor keys to get there faster mirror, mirror, see this as clear as crystalline secondhand interpreter
the spoken word for change wait for me, i wanted to feel this safe i can't hear you scream, hold the phone to make it better
i can't hear you scream, i wanted to feel this safe i can't hear you blood to the beat, this thirst of the lion can't be quenched by cigarette strewn cubicle air dear diluted, while you're dreaming show me something, hold the phone, we've found an answer

wait for me, i wanted to feel this safe.
better
deep into the red we need a change just look at this cardboard cutout this puppet that you've become let me be the first to acknowledge you've no pride, you've no purpose it's so typical to think less is more when you're out of the lead don't hurt yourself, settle for less

the spoken word for change.
i can't hear you, hold the phone, we've found an answer
