We're locked into a television riot.
She found herself in the television riot.

Someday conversation will be back in vogue,
And we'll have to clean up this mess.
I'll say something unrecited, but right now I just don't know what it is.
These days, we're so obsessed with the emptiness of
the cable set.
She'll say that nothing's changed but she's mirroring
the lines of this foreign movie.

Your two eyes had a good thing going, now I try so hard to understand.
Switching channels for dreams, but I still don't know what it means.

Programs have me questioning every good thing that comes out of you.
My hands are feeling uninspired, but the digital coma
keeps me true.
These days we need a rest from the emptiness of the cable sect.
She'll say that nothing's changed, but she's tearing up
my time with this.

Channels changing your mind when I gave up on everything...
