It was an old song,
From Kiss me, kiss me, kiss me that she sang.
It was an old line,
I kept with me with me with me when she rang.

You're such a strange girl,
You're such a strange strange girl.
You're such a strange girl.

It's all been arranged
Everyone is telling me,
It's slightly deranged,
Everyone is telling me.

We traded blindness for wisdom
& some lines around the eyes.
But you just act like it was a fact of life
It didn't come as a surprise.
You're such a strange girl,
You're such a strange strange girl.
You're such a strange girl.

And no you can't ever go home.
Everything has changed and people are gone.
So close your eyes and summon the song and you feel your life falling under you like a slide, like a slide.

It was an old song,
I once knew every note and every line.
It was a long night,
When carried you and you carried me for a time.
You're such a strange girl,
You're such a strange strange girl.
You're such a strange girl.
