"Earth child"

A divine providence smiled sweetly
The day that you were born
The day you came to be
A brand new member of this earth, of this world
Manna from heaven, harvest visual feast
Sapped with so much richness
That runs deep within
Sweet honey nectar of the Gods
That's what you symbolize

Your smooth-skinned complexions
Like the richness of the soil
So organic and natural, unspoiled
Earthchild you're so lovely and so divine

You're gotta find the key to (your mind)
Let it run free and (you'll find)
You'll come to realize your presence here
Wasn't meant to be earth child
Come face to face
With God's creation
Run the race with all the nations
The lesson here's to seek and you shall find
Know yourself Earthchild

The strength that you elude that you emit
Flows beyond the senses
Goes deep within
Beauty of the spirit kind
Heaven personified

The core foundation epitome of
How every girl, woman and child should be
The strength you wear
The gifts that you bear

Your body's like a temple
Sacred like a shrine
Something to be worshipped
Gives birth, gives life, Earthchild
You're so lovely and so divine

You're gotta find the key to (your mind)
Let it run free and (you'll find)
You'll come to realize your presence here
Wasn't meant to be Earthchild
Feed your hunger for the wisdom
You're as precious as the stars, and you are divine
So love yourself Earthchild
