You won't trust 'cause you've been lied to. There's no one to stand beside you. Every search for illumination's left you in the dark.

Your every hope and dream is shattered. You pretend it doesn't matter. You know something's missing and it's tearing you apart.

I know you want to break free. I know you know you could be so much more than everyone is telling you you are.

Hold on

When everything around you falls to pieces. You're trying hard to make it through so...

You won't last in this condition.

Time is up. It's your decision. You're driving in the wrong direction down a one way street. And everything I love about you fades away as darkness shrouds you. I won't stand here waiting when there's Someone you should meet.

I know you want to break free.

I know you know you could be so much more than everyone is telling you you are.

Hold on when everything around you falls to pieces.

You're trying hard to make it through. So fall on the open arms. He'll catch you. He is Jesus. And you're gonna be alright tonight.

You try to tell yourself that love is just a feeling, that no one wants to take a chance on a fragile, broken heart.

I know you want to break free.

Know you know you could be so much more than everyone is telling you you are.

Hold on when everything around you falls to pieces.

You're trying hard to make it through. So fall on the open arms. He'll catch you. He is Jesus. And you're gonna be alright tonight.
