I am a piece of bacteria on this bitter earth,
Or even, a virus, for what good it's worth
But don't you understand the words that I'm saying Can't you see the impact of the games we are playing We're going back to where we were at the start
I just hope to god you haven't had a change of heart

Cause I don't think that we can survive this When we're just putting up with the same old shit
As we were 20 years ago, nothing seems to change The puppets come and go but the strings stay the same

And I am a piece of bacteria that they want to kill Just so they can implement their corrupt systems will
The vultures are circling and ready to pick
The bones of the weak the dying and sick
The bones of the union, the peoples weary blood To dump in unmarked graves on government sponsored mud

Now the goosesteps are getting ever closer,
They're coming in on me
The private armies of the rich elite will certainly make sure
That we can't ever be free

So the train is now arriving at the station To take us back to Auschwitz to resume our concentration
The stock market grows and the feudal state knows that the Deck is in their favour Yet the dying breath of the nation state is something I will savour

Yet you still say to me that I make no contribution That this social war of mine is just a cut and paste solution
"You can't win with an army so small, sort it out then give me a call", but arbitrary views don't mean shit to me

The vision you want is something you'll never see

So if you fight societies law

And if youve found something that you'll die for Yeah if you fight societies law

Well if you want peace, you'd better prepare yourselves for war
