You have a way with words never seem to care and it's hard to believe in something that's not there, or there

And when I wake
it's the middle of the day and my phone is ringing

When I'm at home, in a world of my own, I stop

And when I wake
it's the middle of the day and my phone is ringing

When I'm at home, in a world of my own

Beneath the land of snow under the edge of sky across the Bering Strait asking himself why, oh why

And when I wake
it's the middle of the day and my phone is ringing

When I'm at home in a world of my own I stop

And when I wake
it's the middle of the day and my phone is ringing
