on a night like this you can't brush away all the faces in the street I've got so much longing in my heart I can't even sleep

darling there's a thick fog up ahead the first time that I saw you I couldn't say a thing I walked in now, I walked in now I walked in this room I walked in with nothing 'cos spending time & money doesn't mean a thing when the moon comes smiling through the trees when the night has come like music to surround you but you're missing

I picked her up at half past four & felt the evening coming in her tired eyes & everyone was leaving & the moment soon passed away
