Odd how her face splintered like a snapped branch A man used to occupy this body Remnants of his blood still linger in these veins Nothing could ever rend her from my hands The steam kept pouring from her skin time is not going to heal these wounds time is not going to heal this wound crimson explosions reflecting in my eyes the air is thick and my lungs are burning your lips part but your mouth is empty this is where i must cut my loses your eyes open but they are missing oblivion is staring back at me i am ready to be consumed i mapped your body like the schematics of a building that i torched from the inside out
