

The Degenerates "October Accident"

Visit "October Accident" on MotoLyrics.com

you were the hopeless part of fall growing colder by the day, no feeling left at all slumber sleeping has become a trend midnight to the afternoon, sunrise to the end look close, to see right through me your eyes never fail to consume me I wish you were blind you just don't care about this you fail to see right through this you were the one thing that kept me on my feet the worst part of ever being me analyzing every thought, dissecting everything I know one last drink would drown me swallow all my pride and let this pain consume me the sirens and the lights flood my town tonight "good god! I won't breathe again if I know this air is cold tonight!"

she said "we haven't scratched the surface just yet, not quite yet"
I think I've got one last thing to say...

so tip the hourglass let it spill so fast that my blood turns into glue but on second thought I think...
I don't want a thing to do with you

I was built to break so just build me up gonna hide? scream it out!
"are you comfortable?"
pour your thoughts into my glass till I know it all

Visit The Degenerates page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.