So, you want to destroy the government, and be free?
Well, how can you fight the police, when your hate is all that you can see? Change the world, our leaders are all fascists! There is a problem that is closer to you, your love is too passive. How can you change the world when you cannot change yourself? Hatred breeds hatred.
So, how much longer will these chains old you bound?
These handcuffs you wear, you have the key to them! Release your mind from your body, and fight back. The keys name is courage. The straightjacket you put yourself in is as thin as fuking paper.
Release your arms from your body, and fight back!
You saw another act on his hate and his misunderstanding, and it makes you so angry, and it makes you so mad. Well, what kind of example are you going to set? Cuz violence breeds violence, and forgiveness breeds forget.
I've known what love is for the past 3 years. Hatred is hatred, it can only cause fear. If a punk is ready to attack, do all you can, try and hold him back. Glue your eyes to the ground, never even care if a nazi hits the ground. Untie your blindfold, and then you will will see, we are the punks, a little bit of love and the scene will be free, and the world will be free. How much longer will hate hold you bound?
