(N. Finn/T. Finn)

Endless travel, can't remember

Where I've been

Lying in this hammock, feeling tragic

Like the ones you hear so much about

Can't wait to tell you what I've seen

Skim the water, South Atlantic

Ocean grey

Always searching for his mate

Lonely albatross cannot find them

The ones you care so much about

They're lost and you're losing

Your way

Too much pressure, gin and tonic water

They'll forget you, the ones you care

So much about

They'll surrender to the need

Paradise wherever you are
