Drank and all were merry we could've gotten married that day there to anybody there with a serenade from the street up to an open window kiss her on the balcony while we were drinking twenty feet away and in an open window with people drinking and laughing they would all look down and say why don't you marry that one and it was the same one that we all searched for kiss her on the balcony while we were drinking twenty feet away we had a new friend a Mexican from somewhere in the southeast of the united states he showed some identification that was forged this night would never end kiss her on the balcony while we were drinking twenty feet away kiss her on the balcony and we'll all make friends with the Mexicans we drank and all were merry we could've gotten married that day there to anybody there with a serenade from the street up to an open window with people drinking and laughing we'd all be laughing
