The storyline drug out for hours
The fixed alibis are taking affect Causing conflict in my mind
She somehow knew but i was careful
Put on regret and wear it everywhere i go

But im still buying time to confront these allegations
The hardest part of letting go
Is to do the right thing if you don't want to
I can't figure it out my conscience is eating me alive
So give me one more chance to protest this execution

Getting back to where we started
With a bit of a pick me up
I turn around and let you leave Another fatal mistake letting you take all the hurt i must of made
But I'll be gone with the gillotine for now

But im still buying time to confront these allegations
The hardest part of letting go
Is to do the right thing if you don't want to
I can't figure it out my conscience is eating me alive
So give me one more chance to protest this execution

I've come here to confess and admit to everything ive done
You say you had no clueand i say your time had come
So hold your head up high to keep your kneck exposed and take on all my words as i shoot an arrow through your throat
