She Started coming down
She's high up in an airplane
Descending on our town
And I, I like my vision blurred
The lights reminded me of her
And the way I let her down
But I'm getting older and I know that nothing's changed
I've got to let her go
And the truth is I'm better off alone
No sense in dragging someone else along
And I know that she knows
She said

You'll lie wide awake at night
Thinkin' about the battle between you and
I know it's not about who wins
Sometimes it's better to give in
You've got to learn to try again

I'm taking to the road
The desert looks so desolate
As I'm reaching for the phone
And the static reappears
The signal's keeping me from her
And what she needs to hear
Oh, but time's passing slowly
I'm so lonely without her
She's absent from my world
And the truth is I'm better off alone
No sense in dragging someone else along
And I know that she knows
She said

You'll lie wide awake at night
Thinkin' about the battle between you and
I know it's not about who wins
Sometimes it's better to give in
You've got to learn to try again
Come come on
Come come on

You'll lie wide awake at night

Just thinkin' about the battle between you and
I know it's not about who wins
Sometimes it's better to give in

I lie wide awake at night
Thinkin' about the battle between you and
I know it's not about who wins
Sometimes it's better to give in
You've got to learn to try again

Sometimes it's better to give in

Sometimes it's better to give in
You've got to learn to try again
