SPOKEN

There's probably a lot of you girls out there hung up on a man

And you're caught in that old familiar way of wanting someone

Who don't want you

You know, men are full of schemes

And they're masters of getting control of our minds and making

Us dependent on them

As I look back to the day you left me

I felt that love had forsaken me

As time went by, tears began to dry

Now I see you never really cared

Life is wonderful when love is shared

The day that I lost you, that's the day I found myself

The day that I lost you, that's the day I found myself

Your love controlled, but never consoled me

I was in love, but so unhappy

So many nights I was in the cold

When you left, you opened up the door

To a world I'd never seen before

The day that I lost you, that's the day I found myself

The day that I lost you, that's the day I found myself

I found love with someone who needs me

I'm loving life the way it should be

I gave you love, you only used me

And when you left, you hurt yourself

I found identity with someone else

The day that I lost you, that's the day I found myself

The day that I lost you, that's the day I found myself

Don't you know that you only hurt yourself

I'm so glad you're gone, cause you made me so...

Oh, bless the day you left, cause that's the day I found myself...
