Pressure...

Pressure is all we've got

The less you know the more you strain to reach out to see

In the balance there's nothing free

It took the best of them down with a single blow

Brace yourself for the challenge ahead

Don't waste your breath on what you know

Brace yourself for the challenge ahead

You've got to pace yourself the last to go

I journeyed to the edge of all my tears

Counted every night I fought bartered

I pray that you could feel like I do, never to remain a martyr

The less you know, you're getting shadowed by vanity

Somehow rage becomes clarity

You'll find it deep in my family

It took the best of us down

I journeyed to the edge of all my tears

Counted every night I fought bartered

I pray that you could feel like I do

Never to endure a heart of stone

All of your enemies are out to change you

The greatest weapon of etiquette

I traded serenity, to realize the struggle of knowing what I could get

I took part in a dream where nobody told me where to go or who to be

It opened my eyes, never will I know of peace again

Pressure is building to no end

Pressure is all we've got

This won't end in failure
