Momma comes his hair and daddy helps him brush his teeth. Day after day for thirty years the same routine. The special needs he lives with, makes life, seem so unfair. But he thanks God everyday, cause he knows, mom and dad are there.

Chorus

He's a hero and she's a hero it doesn't matter, that nobody knows there name. They keep on givin' to make life, worth a livin'. Might go unnoticed, but they're heroes just the same.

They tried for many years, to have a baby of their own. But God knew a little girl, that didn't have a home. Someone else's burden, was their blessing in disguise. Now she's got a mom and daddy, there to hold her when she cries.

Repeat Chorus

Tag...

Every single parent, who must carry twice the load. And those who sacrifice to raise a child that's not their own. They dedicate their time to make a difference. In someone else's life, and in my eyes.

Repeat chorus

They might go unnoticed but their heroes.
