Two sides of me agree to disagree they went their separate ways today one stays at home the other walks the streets that's how i lost the quiet side of me he packed my yearbook and directories and a list from bad to worse he's got a list that he's been holding in and you're the ones to hear it first knocking on the door of the friends who betrayed me standing in the street with the sign that he made me calling all the liars to tell them that the truth is better in the end when you're taking your revenge fire on the third floor, heading out the back door is the quiet side of me, making up for all the time he lost

once my quiet side is satisfied there's no one left to feed his appetite he'll go back to how he used to be until my quiet side through with me hanging up the phone on the friends with the favors gonna get them back for the scars that they gave us

hand to play nice guy, telling little white lies now the quiet side of me, is claiming his revenge on everything...
