It seems half of what I see was only meant to be for someone else
but it aint me
I don't believe in much fate well maybe some of the time

Now the other half I found while messing around with my own intuition, on my own steady ground I work with what I will
and I work with what I've got

You know stealing is appealing, but a thief I'm not

It seems half of what I find is only for a peaceful mind That I never wanted,
Is that such a crime?
I like to struggle in my day
well maybe some of the time

on someone else's ground Right where it belongs, Complacently sound
I work with what I will,
and I work with what I've got

You know stealing is appealing,
but a thief I'm not

Sometimes even steady ground has the tendency to crumble or so I've found but maybe it's different maybe this time
I'll find my own reflection and we'll walk that line
