In my heart of hearts
My loving you has waned
It seems my only passions are the ones that bring you pain

In my heart of hearts
I never meant to strain
All your choices and ideals, for I know how it feels
to be left out in the rain

It keeps spraying drops, and like lollipops
We try to get down to the middle
The first one there seems to have the most care while the other plays second fiddle

But that second fiddle is an integral part for the structure of the whole If there'd be no fiddle, we'd have no middle and we'd melt like heated snow

The rain, it ceased, for a day at least
and the happiness ensued
The caring that I lacked now has your back while I solemnly pay my dues

You know I said, "I do" and I meant it, too
I just forgot how to care I owe a whole lot to the one I've got and I'm glad you're still standing there

In my heart of hearts
My loving you had waned
It seemed my only passions were the ones that brought you pain

In my heart of hearts

All your choices and ideals,
for I know how it feels
