It was a half past twelve when I saw you on the steps outside your house
I looked straight down, you saw me, said hello, I stuttered twice and caught myself
I know that you don't feel the same way
But sometimes I tell myself you think of me

And all I lose, and every stupid thing that I do
Is bringing me back to you
I wish you knew, every little thing that you do
Is pulling me back to you, ooh-oh

When I said goodbye I won her over
But I didn't get her number,
Oh for once I wish I had the confidence to tell you
I know that it's over, I'm too late
I thought I dreamed that you'll come back to me

And all I lose, and every stupid thing that I do
Is bringing me back to you
I wish you knew, every little thing that you do
Is pulling me back to you

I'm not the type to meet you Friday night and ask you to stay
It's far more likely for me to wait three years
I'm just too late
I'm not the type to meet you Friday night and ask you to
stay
It's far more likely for me to wait three years
I'm just too late to say... I like the way

That all I lose, and every stupid thing that I do
Is bringing me back to you
I wish you knew, every little thing that you do
Is pulling me back to you, ooh

And all I lose, and every stupid thing that I do
Is bringing me back to you
I wish you knew, every little thing that you do
Is pulling me back to you
