Twilight fades into day
The moon once again hides her face
Until barely light remains
And night reigns over the day
Night reigns over the day

The sky can't forget what was
That in the moon, there once was love
Sent from the sky up above
A reminder of all the pain caused
The moon destroyer awaits her
To destroy the moon at all cost...

And with one flash, all lights out, tonight
Her pale face falls from the sky, up high
Where tears of rage pour down like rain, for her
The sky will never be the same, again
For the sky's rage destroyed her
So the clouds try to cover what's gone
But the moon upstairs will shine...
Will shine on
