Could I have done something would you have stayed
I knew day one was already too late
I slept right through it but I never knew
That I was losing you all along.....

Our promises weighed in the same ounce for ounce
But none of it stayed in so none of it counts
While I was waiting while you were away
I was losing you all along.....

There were things I listened to that sounded wrong
But I couldn't notice

They were so strong
But at the time
Seemed like they were nothing
And you told me not to worry about them
As time went on
I was losing you all along

The East is red
The West is blue
Revenge is sweet
And so are you
Just another thing to do

Somebody strings someone along
Someone looking at it wrong
Seeing me, and you
The way I must have wanted to

While I was losing you all along.....

And I wonder if I knew something could be done
There could have been chances

But now they're gone
Just like you
They wouldn't stay still
And I pictured you counting the days til
I'd be gone

I was losing you all along

And I
Never know
What I'm going to turn into
All I know
Is that I've been too
Often wrong

I was losing you
All along.....
